Valt: launch communications

Project Catalyst Fund 11 · Project 1100019 · supporting evidence for Milestone 5 (artist recognition and reach)

Period: 29 Jul to 30 Sep 2026 | Source: Awen OS scheduler and Awen Mail, read-only export 30 Sep 2026 22:23 UTC | Prepared: 30 Sep 2026

This document reproduces every published Valt post from the Awen OS scheduler between 29 Jul and 30 Sep 2026 (16 platform posts across X, Instagram, LinkedIn, Facebook and Discord, on the Awen and Cullah accounts), plus the pre-launch email sent to the Awen mailing list on 29 Jul. Captions are reproduced exactly as published, including links and hashtags. Each post shows its publish time, its permalink, and the metrics from the scheduler's last pull, with the pull date shown; those figures are a snapshot and may understate the current numbers, particularly for the 30 Sep posts, which were measured on the day they went out.

Measured figure: impressions on X and LinkedIn, reach (unique accounts) on Instagram, summed across the platforms that report them. Facebook returned no metrics to the scheduler and Discord webhook posts are not measured, so those posts count as zero here. Across all 16 posts: 1,526 measured impressions/reach and 14 public permalinks. Links counts posts with a returned permalink.

The M5 reports quote 1,432 for the 7 Aug to 21 Sep posts from an earlier metrics pull; this pack uses the latest pull (1,433) and adds the 30 Sep London posts (93, measured on the day).

Hi there,
 At Awen we have been building music tools on Cardano, and two just reached an important milestone: Sync.Land and Valt are now live on Cardano's preprod testnet.
 Both run end to end, and we are opening them up to artists, musicians, fans, and testers. We need real activity and honest feedback, and this is the moment it counts most. Here is what each one does, and how you can help.

We built Valt, and today it is live.

Valt is a Web3 artist portal on Cardano. Artists publish their songs as digital collectibles and sell them directly to fans, with no label and no middleman, and every collectible is verifiable on-chain. Each artist also gets a token-gated space, their Valt, where their real supporters unlock exclusive drops, content, and access.

It is the sister platform to sync.land, our music licensing marketplace, and it was made as part of Project Catalyst on Cardano.

Launch artists include Cullah and Mie, alongside a growing roster of independent artists across the US and Africa.

This is the kind of work the studio takes on. Real products for real creative businesses, designed, built, and shipped end to end.

It is early and we are building in the open, so tell us what is working and what is not.

Twenty years of releasing my own music. No label, no gatekeepers.

Now I am exploring what Valt makes possible. Songs as collectibles on Cardano, sold direct to fans.

Built by @awen_online.

For twenty years, I've been releasing my own music. Seventeen albums. No label, no gatekeepers.

I am spending this year building Valt and seeing what is possible with digital cooperative networks of creative people and their works.

Valt is a Web3 artist portal on Cardano, built by my studio, Awen. You publish songs as digital collectibles and sell straight to the people who actually listen. No middleman. Every artist gets a token-gated space where supporters unlock demos, drops, livestreams, and access.

Valt is infrastructure for a new digital economy.

I am testing this in public alongside other independent artists who want to be a part of a new digital economy.

If you make music and you are curious, come poke at it with me.

One month on. While hardening Valt's wallet login we found a critical flaw, not in our code but in CardanoPress, the open-source wallet plugin many Cardano sites use. We reported it. It was fixed and credited to us in 1.36.1.

One month on from opening Valt, a progress report.

The part I am proudest of: while hardening our own wallet login, we traced the wallet-authentication path end to end and found a critical flaw. Not in our code, but in CardanoPress, the open-source wallet plugin used across the Cardano ecosystem. We reported it upstream. It was fixed, and credited to us in the 1.36.1 release.

When ownership is the key, the lock has to hold.

Valt is a music platform on Cardano where collecting a song unlocks the artist's exclusive content, enforced on the server rather than just hidden in the browser. It is early, it is on testnet, and the first handful of feedback responses already changed the roadmap.

Hazy Jo is an independent artist and producer from Lagos, and London is a melodic, atmospheric ride built on African rhythms and electronic production.

London by Hazy Jo is now live on Valt.

Valt is where fans collect limited editions from independent creators, starting with music. Holding an edition unlocks the artist's Valt, a space only holders can enter.

Hazy Jo is an independent artist and producer from Lagos, working across Afrobeats, Afro House and Afro Tech. London comes as 20 editions. Collecting one unlocks the official London music video inside Hazy Jo's Valt, streamed only to holders.

A note on where we are: Valt is running as a public testnet preview on Cardano. Collecting uses free test ADA from a Preprod wallet, so nothing here costs real money. We're using this stage to make collecting and unlocking feel simple before anything goes further.
